

EU Commission Guidelines on Acceptable and Non-acceptable Cargo descriptions.

Although the implementation of the European 24 hours advance cargo manifest (Regulation 1875/2006) has been postponed until December 31, 2010, the European Commission has already set up guidelines for acceptable and non-acceptable plain language cargo descriptions to make the cargo descriptions precise enough for the Customs Services to identify the goods. It is worth noting, individual EU Member States can already request the application of cargo descriptions.

For example, the Dutch Customs started this requirement effective from July 1st, 2009. This will mean that declaring the non-acceptable good descriptions will cause possible delay at Customs inspection and control. Therefore, we would highly recommend you to apply only acceptable cargo description on your shipping instructions to us.

Other member states will soon follow and therefore, we also sincerely suggest you take this opportunity to apply the cargo description guidelines for shipments to any other European countries also.

For your reference below are examples of acceptable and non-acceptable descriptions.
